Swarthmore College

Offers Four Regular Courses

—————Leading to Degrees—————

THERE is first of all the broad culture of the Course in Arts; then there is the practical field of English and Other Modern Languages and Literatures; for the physician there is special work in Biology; for the lawyer or business man there is the course in Economics and Social Science; there is work in the field and training in the shop for the Civil or Mechanical Engineer, while the laboratories open the doors to Electrical and Chemical Engineering. Joined with all this there is Intelligent Physical Culture with all that the phrase implies. At Swarthmore, too, there is that intimate contact of professor and student, which is probably the greatest force in the development of character, and which is possible only at a small college. Under management of Friends. Catalogues on application.

The Days of Gold

Of task and dreams sweet blent, the days of gold
Gleam through the measure of the treasured years
In College halls, with lustre Time endears
In lingering charm and memories manifold.
We know their gold is true ! what hopes they hold
We shall attain ; what promise to our ears
They speak, we shall fulfill ; we know not fears
While they, with courage high, our hearts enfold.
They in the future cast their radiance pure
To light the ways our hastening feet shall fare
The while our dreams grow to reality.
And shall we fall ! the memories will endure
Of sunlit days with mingled visions rare
And kindled hopes too high for Fate's decree.

W. M. S.

To thee a little gift we bear,
Tales of laughter and pleasant hours;
Dreams and fancies light as air,
Tangled in Memory's golden hair,
 © friend of ours.

For thee we have lilted a verse or twain
Of our life, and its gardens of thornless flowers,
Its laughter happy as April rain,
It sighs, with never a note of pain,
 © friend of ours.

For thee we have wrought a magic charm
To guard thee ever with mystic powers,
To carry thee far from wrong and harm
Back to thy youth, and the sunshine warm,
 © friend of ours.

Swarthmore College

Its Origin and Some Notes Upon its Early History

By Edward B. Magill, LL. D.

CHAPTER IX.

IGHTEENTH YEAR, 1886-87.—The most important event of this eighteenth year of the College, when viewed retrospectively, after the lapse of sixteen more years, was the appointment to the position of Matron of Elizabeth Powell Bond. She took the place made vacant by the resignation of Anna W. Frost Clapp, after serving in this position satisfactorily for a period of four years. It was soon seen, after the appointment of Mrs. Bond, that a new element, destined to exercise a powerful influence for good on the welfare of the College, had been introduced into government, and the conviction of the great gain we had experienced by her appointment has become more and more evident with every passing year. It had been felt for some time that the title of Matron, as used generally, did not properly apply to the position at Swarthmore, and it was not many years after Mrs. Bond's appointment that the position was honored by the far more appropriate title of Dean, by which alone it has been known in later years. The influence of the new Dean, then (pardon this use of the word before the title was yet conferred, as no other word will do as well), was soon felt, not alone in the dining-room, where she presided, and among the young women, whose care in the home life was especially entrusted to her, but in all the departments of the College, in a way, it may be said to have been felt, like the all-diffusive and inspiring influence of the sun and air. The young men felt this equally with the young women, although she was never one to assume authority of any kind not expressly delegated. The Faculty all felt this in their meetings, and separately and individually in all their class-room work. Just how this influence was exerted it is far easier to understand than to clearly explain. It was always more through what she was, and was so unanimously felt to be, than through spoken words. And yet her words, at proper times, in our meetings for worship, and in our public collections, were words that silently and surely brought about in the minds of the students the results which she felt it important to produce. Whoever may have read her two little volumes, recently published, with the unambitious title of Words by the Way, will be convinced of this. One of the most important later results of her sixteen years of most valuable service may be said to be her successful introduction, among the young women, for the past two years, of an admirable and practical system of self-government. But if I dwell longer on this important theme I shall not cover, within the limits prescribed, the history of two-years, as I have usually done in each chapter in the past. I therefore reluctantly leave a theme which is worthy of far fuller treatment than is possible in this one chapter of history.

The only other changes in the Faculty this year were the appointment of Benjamin Smith, A. M., Professor of Rhetoric and English; the resignation of Elizabeth Clarke Miller, A. B., Assistant Professor of Rhetoric, and the appointment of William Penn Holcomb, Ph. D., Professor of History and Political Science and Lecturer on Pedagogics. It will be seen that the condition of the College in that early day required a combination of so many subjects for each Professor that his title was almost as long as his program.

The number of students in the College and Preparatory School remained nearly as last year, with the College slightly in the majority. This was the case for the first time last year (1885-6), and the majority of the students were always in the College after this so long as the Preparatory School was kept up; while in the early 80's the Preparatory School outnumbered the College in the proportion of two to one; in the later 80's the order was reversed. From that time onward, as our good Preparatory Schools increased, the standard of the College has been raised to meet present requirements, until the end so long sought was happily reached some years since, and Swarthmore became a College in full standing, without the incubus of an added Preparatory School, under the same management, and dwelling under the same roof. We by no means assert that this union was a mistake in the beginning, as it was adopted from the force of circumstances, and has doubtless been the means by which our one College has grown, at last, to a College of full stature, the equal of most of our Colleges, and surpassed by but few of the older Colleges of the country, and has attained to even more than a national, enjoying now an international reputation, a reputation which, on a careful examination of our announcements and our work will be freely acknowledged to be well deserved.

To encourage among Friends the patronage of our only College the President traveled during this year through Pennsylvania and adjacent States, also through the West and in Canada, speaking many times upon the value and importance of a modern college course of study, and especially of having all our schools, when possible, in charge of College graduates. To secure this result a course in Pedagogics was organized at the College at this time, and made one of the elective studies, having its full weight toward the amount of work required to obtain the College degree. It was stated in the Report of the Managers for this year that the number of graduates of our College then engaged in teaching was thirty-five, twenty-four of whom were teaching in Friends' schools.

The observatory of the College was erected during this year at an expense of $6,000, raised by the indefatigable labors of Susan J. Cunningham, our Professor of Mathematics.

NINETEENTH YEAR, 1887-88.—The only changes in the Faculty this year were the resignation of Lemuel L. Green, M. Sc., Professor of Physics; the appointment of William C. Day, Ph. D., as Professor of Physics and Chemistry; the promotion of Dr. Charles S. Dolley to a full Professorship of Biology, and his appointment as member of the Faculty.

As a result of the special efforts made in the past year there was now an increase of 46 per cent. in the College classes, the whole number of College students, reaching 169, with the total enrollment of 253 in the College and Preparatory School. The increased number of students and the constantly advancing standard of scholarship in the various departments promising at an early day to demand several additional professorships, now turned the attention of the Board toward the necessity of having some of these professorships endowed; and the increased interest and activity of Friends, as a result of our great loss by fire six years before, and the exertion necessary to rebuild the College, without incurring any mortgage upon the property, and all within the limits of a single year, seemed to inspire Friends with a hope that the College could now soon be placed upon a successful financial foundation by the endowment of some of the professorships, none of which had yet been endowed. The sum of $40,000 would, at five per cent., endow a professorship at the price then paid a full Professor, $2,000 a year. The modest attempt was first made to endow one professorship, by starting a conditional subscription, the clearly expressed condition being that no subscription was valid unless the full amount of $40,000 was subscribed within the current college year. Any amount was accepted, from a single dollar up to thousands, and the commencement of '88 (the date fixed for the closing of the lists) was approaching and $8,000 yet remained to be obtained, to give validity to the subscriptions made. The friends of the College grew more anxious with each passing day, until, at length, the members of the Board, true to their loyal attachment to the College, as they have ever been from the beginning, under the influence of a powerful inducement, divided among them the pecuniary responsibility for the $8,000 needed to complete the $40,000. That peculiar inducement will ever remain a most interesting incident in the history of Swarthmore College. It was simply this, that three good friends of the College agreed with the Board that if they would assume the $8,000 required, each of them would endow a separate professorship, at $40,000 apiece. Thus, as the result of this year's anxious work, it was publicly announced on Commencement Day that four professorships had been endowed, with a total sum of $160,000. The names of the three friends, who added this to many other kind deeds of a similar nature, should be mentioned here: They are Isaiah V. Williamson, since deceased; Isaac H. Clothier, and Joseph Wharton. I will close this chapter by the following quotation from the Report of the President of the College, made to the Board of Managers, in the Autumn of 1888. The Report says, after announcing the success of the effort to endow some professorships: "But our work is yet unfinished, and we should not rest satisfied until we are so situated financially that we can afford to advertise tuition for Friends' children at very low rates, a moderate sum for the actual expenses of living. After much and careful thought, I am well satisfied that such a position as I here indicate, can be safely taken by the College only after the full endowment of ten professors' chairs, to accomplish which result the sum of about a quarter of a million dollars must be added to our endowment fund. That there will be found friends of Swarthmore abundantly able and willing to supply this need within the lifetime of the present generation, I confidently hope and expect."

These hopeful words were written fourteen years ago, and the number of endowed professorships still stands at four. Shall we not expect the added six before the present generation all pass on to the Life Beyond? The College has made a constant advance in the character of its work, and is most worthy of the assistance of interested Friends. Shall it languish for the want of this much-needed and well deserved assistance? I can but still believe that the hope expressed fourteen years ago will be amply fulfilled by the present generation.

History of Class of 1902

IN the fall of '98 there appeared at the portals of Swarthmore a motley crowd, who even then declared that they were the brightest people that ever entered these doors. And from that time to the present they have never ceased to brag of their greatness, although we must admit that they have done little to prove it.

Their first idea of greatness was to be conspicuous, so they boldly traced their numerals on the College dome, and there, in the full light of the morning sun, they announced to the world how truly green they were. Never was the old adage more appropriate than in connection with them—Fools' names, like their faces, appear in public places.

With most classes there is a decided improvement in the Sophomore year, a little of the verdure has worn off, and Freshman tricks are left behind. Consequently we expected better things of this Class in their Sophomore year, but, alas! they were still naughty too (two). We were doomed to disappointment, and we have learned to our sorrow that age does not improve them. In fact, they develop worse traits each year.

They came back as Sophomores just as verdant and fresh as ever. They expected to beat 1903 in foot-ball, but somehow they let the Freshmen tie them, and on top of that, even with their manifold numbers, they couldn't prevent the bonfire. Oh! where were your athletes, then, 1902? They should have been sufficiently developed as Sophomores to put the Freshmen off the field. But you didn't seem to be in very good working order that night!

Somewhere later in the year 1902 performed that dreadful "dummy" act, which made them out bigger dummies than we have ever believed them before. They were Freshmen still, for they again painted their numerals all over the asphaltum and grand stand, which latter still reflects their greenness.

In their Junior year they concerned themselves only with small things. They gave a miniature Shakespeare evening to a select crowd of admiring (?) friends, and late in the year they became weary of life, and at the same time ran out of HALCYON material. So they mended both evils by swiping the Senior Constitution. Who could have believed that that simple document could give so much amusement, and at the same time inspire an entire volume of light literature. And when their HALCYON did finally appear, oh, my! How little it takes to make some people happy!

And now, at last, 1902 has reached its Senior year! This is the year above all others for them to make their mark. They've tried hard, but unfortunately have failed.

Shakespeare evening came, and on that eventful night they expected to shine as never before. Once more upon the College dome they were going to spread their fame, and for once shine forth brilliantly, but—they didn't shine at all, for even the ingenuity of 1902 can't supply an engine rod, and they retreated from their Shakespeare evening baffled once more by their old enemies, the Juniors.

They expected to win in hockey, too, this year, but were left again, for the Freshmen came up and took all the honors. That's rather hard, isn't it, 1902, to let the Freshmen beat you in your Senior year? You'd better spunk up a bit, for you haven't much more time to redeem yourself.

And now, naughty-two, before you pass out of sight forever, just accept a word of advice. Come down from your exalted position of pride and conceit, for you haven't so much to boast of after all. You have numbers, to be sure, and perhaps some brilliancy, but you don't own the earth, and you may as well learn this truth now as later. Verily, Pride goeth before a Fall.

History of 1903

SWARTHMOREANS, friends, and fellow-classmen! hear me for my cause, and ruminate that you may the better comprehend; believe me, for there is no reason to prevaricate. The roll of victories for nineteen hundred and three stretch out in one grand, continual flood of triumphs.

First came the foot-ball conquest, when emerging from a field of gore and carnage we found ourselves victorious by a score of six to nothing. Fresh from our gridiron achievement we offered up a sacrifice to the goddess of the sphere. Nineteen-two looked on askance, and after vainly charging our altar of sacrifices, betook themselves to a nearby shrine, buckled on sackcloth and immersed themselves in an ash heap. A kindly garbage man chancing by, collected them together in his little cart and deposited the remains in the village dump, where to the best of my knowledge and belief they remain to this day.

The following spring we carried away the George W. Childs Cup in the Inter-class base-ball series. Not resting on these laurels, we captured the Freshman-Sophomore Field Meet by a score of 80 points to 73. So much for our Freshman year.

Early in the fall, just as the leaves were taking on an autumnal hue, a tender infant, baptized under the preposterous cognomen of naughty-four and tumbled early by accident or design into the spacious (?) closets of good old Swarthmore, became somewhat obstreperous, and fearing lest the untutored mind of the stripling become contaminated with the epidemic, so common in plebeian years of college life, better known as an abnormal growth in the tissues of the caput, we found four men, good and true, who volunteered to take herculean measures, if necessary, to reduce this foreign growth. What great success crowned the efforts of these martyrs will go down from generation unto generation. The only lotion used in this operation was a certain deposit of aqua pura, more generally known as Crum Creek.

Now, my Quaker friends, let us deal tenderly with the obituary of the Freshmen. They came, they saw, and finally merged into a sewing circle.

It seems almost like repetition to chronicle the victories of our Sophomore year. Enough to say that we won the Class foot-ball championship by an overwhelming score, again triumphed in the Freshman-Sophomore Field meet by a tally of 37 to 5, and in order to show that all frost had disappeared from Mother Earth, we carried off the Thirty-fourth Annual Field Meet with twenty points to spare. Yet athletics did not claim our sole attention, four silver-tongued orators stepped into the arena and with one fell swoop carried before them the President's Prize.

But, friends, the motto of nineteen hundred and three is "Res non verba," and our actions have spoken even better than words, yea, they will re-echo through the long corridors of Swarthmore till the millenium, and on that great day you shall see the banner of nineteen hundred and three floating majestically in the ethereal breezes, pure, spotless, unsullied, and immaculate.

Tales from the History of 1904

ILL September ever again husband her charms, her graces, to spread them forth as she did that memorable 20th of September, 1900, when, with smiling face, with purest, sweetest dress, she first welcomed to Swarthmore the Class of 1904? In that Class were gathered representatives from the east, from the north, from the south, from the west. They had come with high resolves, each with his own ambitions, but deep-fixed in the minds of all was the feeling that 1904 was destined by fate to be one of the truly great classes of Swarthmore. Swarthmore was to be their home through four years, and readily they adapted themselves to their new conditions.

The ties of acquaintance grew to bonds of friendship. 1903 seemed to find something very charming about 1904—especially those members who dwell in Swarthmore's "East Side." And in order to show the new co-eds. what knights of valor 1903 possessed, they came "three" strong to break up 1904's first Class meeting. But aside from a few panes of glass, which were broken in frantic efforts to escape 1902, the attack amounted to nothing. However, it taught them a lesson, thereafter they waited until the dark of the moon and then went outside, where they had lots of room to run if anybody happened to disturb them. Soon a mistake, and all were herded as in a reconcentrado camp by the stroke of Prex's pen. But that first class meeting, how successful it was, and that success has continued ever since.

1904 were strong in numbers, but with "kindly feelings toward all, with malice toward none," they ceded some of their members to 1903, and it must have been like a godsend, as these transferred Freshmen won most of 1903's track and platform honors for it.

With renewed spirit 1904 came back on another September day. But now they occupied a new sphere in college life—it was their duty to inculcate time-honored traditions in a new host, one with all the faults and few of the good qualities of the average raw recruit. It would take the days of Methusaleh to tell the tales of "gym." meets on R. R. tracks; of eating clubs, and light and airy songs and dances that brought this awkward squad into presentable condition for social hour—for all college life.

With "fresh" wit 1905 says, "We are just one too many for 1904." That sounds like S.'s (N. B.—S=sound) mathematics, but perhaps it would be better if they did not add so much but would do a little subtracting along the line of political corruption. There is nothing that so clearly shows how little respect the members of a Class have for that Class as to allow petty trifling with elections to creep in. It is the most deplorable phase of degeneration.

1904 has indeed had a successful term. To have a part in a Shakespeare evening not tritely but truly pronounced "Swarthmore's most successful Shakespeare evening," is an honor of no little moment. 1904 has been gathering strength for their coming duties.

"May the gods bless you, the devils miss you, and the angels kiss you," until your eyes shall once more be turned to behold another HALCYON,

The HALCYON of 1904.

CLASS OF 1905.

History of Class of 1905

ELL, 1905 has arrived, strong in numbers and strong individually. They are here for four years, and by the end of that time we will have shown you how much a strong Class, inspired by the spirit of old Swarthmore, really can do. But this is a history, not a prophecy, so past events must be recorded, written from an intimate knowledge of the Class. This history will give you the true account of our victories, which others, who knew not the inside working of affairs, could not give.

Our first Class meeting was eminently successful, for, presided over by the President of the friendly Juniors, we elected our officers, not in the least disturbed by the Sophs., who tried to annoy us by futile bangings of doors and windows. Then foot-ball season came around and we showed a glimpse of our strength. Six Freshmen made the team, and the record of the season's victories shows how well they played the game. Indeed, so great was our prowess that the Sophomores were afraid or unable to play the annual Sophomore-Freshman game, to our great disappointment. Evidently 1904 think discretion is the better part of valor.

And, 1904, do you remember when we took our Class picture and you tried to break it up, but were foiled again? We were so sorry you felt bound by tradition, and felt it was necessary to make the attempt, for you are naturally peaceful, and we didn't really want to muss your hair, for you had given us such a nice reception. And, 1903, we admired you for the way you showed you had the right stuff in you by receiving us without resentment, so beautifully, just after we gave you such a drubbing in basket-ball.

And then, when the Crum was frozen over and the rhythmical swing of skaters pleased the eye and the skates rang music to the ear, against the Juniors, and the victorious, doughty Seniors, we won the College championship in hockey.

But all our victories are not athletic. Consult the Class records and you will find that we can study, too. Also there have been some moral and personal victories that most of you know not of. Only one thing we have to complain of. We have things too easy. Conquests are so much more enjoyable when they have to be worked for. But our natural enemies, the Sophs., are so weak that we have had our own way, which is manifestly not good for us; it takes too much spirit out of college life. And if it had been possible we should have been spoiled long ago for having our own way so much. But we found our place in the College quickly, and as we go along are making a new groove for future classes to follow.

Perhaps we were green, but that is our privilege, and we came to College in part to get that greenness worn off. As I said before, we are here for four years, four years of good, hard, honest work in classes and athletics. When we leave College at the end of that time we hope to be better men and women for having been here, and to bear with us that highest crown of success—the knowledge of work well done.

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society

THE Scientific Society was organized in March, 1895, and later received the name of The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society, of Swarthmore College. Its object is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. There are five sciences included in the work of the Association: Astronomy, Biology and Physiography, Chemistry, Engineering, and Physics. The programs of the meetings consist of a report from the instructors in each of the above departments concerning the recent discoveries in the respective sciences. Papers are then read by different members on topics of scientific interest, followed by an open discussion by the Society. The interesting character of these programs is shown by the full attendance at the meetings, from both the College and the borough. The Executive Committee consists of a committee of three from each department,—one instructor and two students.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as the students and officers of the College. The meetings are held in Science Hall, on the first Third-day evening of each month during the College year.

Swarthmore Oratorical Association

THE Swarthmore Oratorical Association is organized as a branch of the State Oratorical Association, and is composed of members of the three College Literary Societies, namely, Somerville, Eunomian, and Delphic.

The College contests are held under its auspices, and with the "Delta Upsilon Prize" as an incentive, the Association gives promise of doing excellent work in determining the fittest person to represent the College in the Inter-Collegiate Contest.

The Young Friends' Association

HIS Association is intended primarily for students, instructors, and other members of our College community; but a considerable number of the neighbors are members, and are identified with its work.

The objects of the organization are two-fold: First, the study of the history, literature, and principles of the Society of Friends, and secondly, the consideration of the vital questions of religion and spirituality which we meet in our everyday life.

The regular meetings are held in the College parlor, on the evening of the third First-day of every month during the College year.

LITERARY MISCELLANY

Prologue

When that Aprille with his shoures soote
Bath perced all the scrub-oakes to the roote
And May bath made the Campus alle greene,
Where sondry folk with golf-sticks may be seene,
Then will the worthy pilgrims far and wyde
Make haste, for soothe, these fables for to rede.
If hold hit ben in every persons minde
That he his name in honor sholde finde,
But natheles if have not tyme and space
To put each person in his proper place,
Or tell in what condicion they be
And which they weren and of what degrec.
And if perchance some thinges have yfalle
To ben forgotten and left out of alle,
Be not with this booke out of charitee—
Myselfen cannot telle why hit be.
But rede and taken what ye liken beste;
If hit ne pleaseth yow, for-gif the reste.
To maken English sweet upon the tonge
Full earnestly and soothly have we songe.

Halcyon Days

In ages gone
O'er purpling billows of the sleeping sea,
Ceyx and Alcyone
Idled together through the dreamy haze,
While Zephyr sang the cradle songs of Greece
And all was peace
Upon the Ægean in those halcyon days
So far away.

Though distant far
The shores of Hellas and the sun-kissed sea,
Even to ye,
O comrades, toiling in the market-place,
Shall come pure joy, with just a sting of pain
Now and again,
When memory brings to you these halcyon days
In gray Swarthmore.

The Pony

(With kind permission of E. A. P.)

Once upon a midnight creepy, while I pondered, very sleepy,

Over many a knotty problem in a much-detested lore—

All at once I heard a ticking, which increased into a clicking,

As of some one gently kicking—kicking at my chamber door.

“’Tis some visitor,” I muttered, “kicking at my
chamber door;

Only this, and nothing more.”

Presently my nerve grew stronger: hesitating then
no longer,

Gathered I my strength together, threw my Conics
on the floor,

And into the darkness gazing, thinking of my days
of hazing—

Fearing some forgotten horror of the freshman days of yore—

Only heard amid the silence one long, loud, resounding snore—

Only this, and nothing more!

Back into my chamber turning, all my soul within me burning,

Soon again I heard a racket, something louder than before.

While my heart was madly thumping, down the hall
came something bumping

And I saw my pony jumping—jumping in my chamber door—

Jumped and stamped, and nothing more.

Then the animal beguiling my sad fancy into smiling

By the look of grave decorum that its fuzzy visage wore—

Straight I said, “Good morning, Carrie! Let me hope that you will tarry,

And that you will kindly carry me through class
as heretofore.”

Quoth the pony, “Nevermore!”

Much I marveled this ungainly beast to hear discourse
so plainly,
Shuddered at the fearful meaning that its declaration bore;
For it seemed to hold me underneath a spell of awful wonder,
Made my inmost being ponder how the beast I might implore—
How prevail on him to keep me as he had done heretofore—
Would that pony go some more?

"Lobster," cried I; "thing of evil; lobster still, if beast or devil,
Who will carry me so safely through exams. that I abhor?
Tell this soul with sorrow weighted, who can save me
if belated
In those permutations hated that we scrambled through before—
Over roots and pure quadratics, will you jump me, as before?
Quoth the pony, "Nevermore!"

Then he left, and, ne'er returning, I am yearning, ever yearning
For those days of ease and leisure that I used to know before.
For, alas! since he deserted, all my plans are disconcerted
And the flunks that he averted are increasing more and more—
And I hope from sure destruction
To be rescued nevermore!

A Contrast

When the mellow moon is rising,
And the stars begin to shine,
And the lovely nightingales begin to sing,
It makes you thrill with pleasure
To hear her soft, sweet voice
Say "Meet me, love, beside the crystal spring!"

But when it's just at twilight,
And you listen to the voice
Whose softest murmur makes your heart go thump—
It rather knocks the sentiment
To hear a hasty call,
"Oh, hustle up, and meet me at the pump!"

A Dream

As I lay sleeping soundly, to my bedside came a shape,
A relic of what once had been a man.
He hobbled and he bled, and he lacked fair half his head,
And other parts were missing from his plan.
I addressed him, "O poor soul, where met you such a fate?"

Did a wreck or foot-ball scrimmage cause this loss?"
But he shook his head. "Ah, no," he whispered, faint and low,
"I got near Sensenderfer in lacrosse."

Eyes of Pink

While poets sing of "Eyes of blue,"
I'll sing of eyes of pink,
For they are quite the proper thing
At present, don't you think?

O eyes of pink, O eyes of pink,
A magic lurks in you
That is not felt at all by those Whose eyes are simply blue.

Your pale, pathetic pinkness,
With a shading of maroon,
Bears with it an impression
That is not forgotten soon.

O maiden fair with eyes of pink,
Can you doubt my heart is true,
When I say I love you twice as much
As when your eyes were blue?

Eyes of blue and eyes of black,
Eyes of brown and gray,
Win poets' praises now no more,
Pink eyes have won the day!

At Ten-thirty P. M.

WHEN long hours of thoughtful study
Make your eyelids sting and droop;
When, with overpowering languor,
Your back begins to stoop,—
How your drowsiness disperses,
How you skip across the floor,
When William, kind old William,
Brings a freezer to the door!

At Four-thirty A. M.

BUT when peace of sweetest slumber
'Gins to calm your restless mind,
When the joyousness of dreamland
Leaves the cares of day behind;
Comes a pang of recollection
Of exams. for you in store,—
Then William, kind old William,
Comes a-pounding on the door.

When Amelia Sings

COME wif me, an' listen, honey,
Ef yo' rally want to heah
Jes' de mos' melojous music
Dat cōuld evah strike yo' eah.
No one can't set pulses throbbin',
None can't stir the strong hate strings,
Like de way yo' feels dem quiverin'
When Amelia sings.

Now yo' fin' yo' eyes a-dancin',
Den yo' fin' 'em full 'f tears,
Dem sweet tones recalls de gladness
An' de sadness ob long years;
All yo' min' is filled wid mem'ries
Sweet, ob distant, by-gone things,
An' yo' fin' yo'self a-dreamin'
When Amelia sings.

O Katharine Way, she hath a Way,
Of going away with Asa Way
Before the sun announces day;
She likes to skate with Asa Way,
But Prex has said it does not pay
Such pranks to play at break of day.

II Wonder Why—

Gertrude and Horace have so much library reading to do?
Bill Walker goes to French and sometimes other classes?
Percy Hoopes doesn't wear dresses?
Esther Gallagher is at college?
Marian Farquhar doesn't grow?
Rebecca Ely isn't pleasanter?
Edith Coalē doesn't co-educate?
Lina Dilliston couldn't extemporize better on her thesis subject?
Mary Hawke doesn't go to a nunnery?
Nate Mannakee has such a swelled head?
Cy Marter doesn't stay with mamma?
Stock doesn't join Dupont's minstrels?
Mitchell doesn't take a greater interest in religious affairs?
Ab Williams doesn't shave oftener?
Betty Booth hasn't a greater variety of smiles?
Billy Hannum doesn't shine his shoes?
Hallie Hulburt doesn't go to church now?
Marian Pierce and Anna Nichols don't comb their hair?
Supt. hasn't been hazed?
Lou Thompson doesn't get fat?
Ed. Bassett hasn't good table manners?
Jenks and Price don't pass in mathematics?
Anna Wolf doesn't write her middle name?

Halcyons Easy be to Write

So long as Dean doth naught but fuss
From dawn to dewy eve,
So long as Prex in stunts
No humor can perceive,
So long as Billy Walker cuts
His classes with a grin,
So long as Asa chases birds,
Or Wilbur chases sin,—
Swarthmore will smile by day and night,
And HALCYONS easy be to write.

So long as Susan teaches math.,
A whirl of chalk and frowns,
So long as Nettie blushes forth
In ever-varying gowns,
So long as Prex and Albert form
A well-beloved group,
So long as Marriott falls in love
Or Hansell in the soup,—
Swarthmore will smile by day and night,
And HALCYONS easy be to write.

So long as Temple sits till ten
At breakfast every morn;
So long as perfect quiet reigns
When Cummings blows his horn;
So long as Sphinxie runs a den
Or Edson runs the earth;
So long as Jenks is flunking still;
So long as "George" is "Worth,"—
Swarthmore will smile by day and night,
And HALCYONS easy be to write.

So long as Monks and Devils vie
In making goats do stunts;
So long as Fresh. try for the crew,
Or Prex for smoking hunts;
So long as 1902 gets whipped
And boasts about the same;
So long as 1904's great teams
Can never win a game,—
Swarthmore will smile by day and night,
And HALCYONS easy be to write.

If you ask me whence these tombstones,
 Whence these humps and whence these hollows,
 Whence these epitaphs in marble,—
 I should answer,—I should tell you,
 They are for the many lost ones

Who have fallen, fighting bravely,
 Fighting in Room J for victory—
 Fighting midst a sea of troubles,
 Not to get a flunk in German.
 Long they struggled, nothing daunted;

Long they hoped, and worked, and waited ;
But a gaunt and ugly phantom
Always lurked and spied upon them,
Saying, "I am but a figure—
But a symbol, weak and sickly—
That you once thought could not harm you.
I will wreak my vengeance on you,
Vengeance for your misdemeanors ;
I will cling unto you closely,
Cling more closely than a brother,
And your pride will have a tumble."

Thus that dreaded "4" addressed them,
Breathed his awful breath upon them,
Watched and dogged their very footsteps,
So that they grew ever thinner,
So that they grew ever paler,
And they slowly faded, faded,
One by one sank down exhausted,
One by one gave up the struggle—
Laid them down to sleep forever!

Do not mourn for them, O brothers !
Weep for them no more, O sisters !
They are now among the blessed,
Having no exams. to haunt them,
Having no Exec. to watch them,
Having no one to suspend them
If they have a little rough-house,
Having none to look reproachful
If they come up late from skating !
How could they be aught but happy
When these things are taken from them ?
Long the days are since they left us,
And our life grows ever harder,—
Harder still becomes our German,
And we see our finish plainly
In the Land of the Hereafter.
Soon we start upon the Journey,
Weary and worn out with grinding,
Broken down by many hardships,—
Leaving this sad life behind us,
To forget all earthly troubles
In the Land of the Hereafter !

Aftermath

WHEN Indian summer reigns supreme,
When skies are soft and clear,
On meadows shorn of all their green
A newer, tenderer growth is seen,
And that is aftermath.

When haggard students pass you by
With sad and downcast head,
And cannot joke or make reply,
Or even smile, but only sigh,
Why that is after Math.

Billet-doux

A JUNIOR wise fell deep in love
With a little Soph. one day;
She didn't fall, and "Billie, don't!"
Was all that she would say.

But he fell deeper still in love,
And in she tumbled, too;
So now, instead of "Billie, don't!"
It's always "Billet-doux!"

◎ Swarthmore

As long as Crum winds in its bed,
Beneath its solemn shade;
As long as blue skies overhead
Span all thy colonnade;
Thy dome gleams bright, with sun aflame,
Recalling our college days,
So long, O Swarthmore, will thy name
Call forth our songs of praise.

As long as scrub oaks dot the view
And maples crown the hill;
As long as meadows touched with dew
The golden flowers fill,
Or visions fair thy vistas frame
Of far-off hills and bays,
So long, O Swarthmore, will thy name
Ring out in songs of praise.

The campus gently slopes
In all its verdant wealth of velvet green,
And on yon prominence,
With proud and stately mien,
I see thy classic walls reach up in splendor
To the clouds above.

Book of De Jfooles

CHAPTER I

1, The day of tribulation; 2, The tribulation of Hansell;
3-5, His desire to wash; 6-10, His yelling; 11, End.

1 And it came to pass that in the day of tribulation¹ many were gathered together in the plain called Camp Us; to do labor together one with another.

2 And behold, one of these was clean in soul, albeit, not in person, and he said unto himself, Wow!

3 Lo, I will go unto those in power, even unto Soopull,² and beg me ointment and will wash.

4 And he went unto Soopull, even unto the great one who needeth not butter, saying, Here be shekels of gold, yea, and silver. Give unto me soap and a bath ticket,³ that I may wash me and be clean.

5 And Soopull said unto him, Depart thou unto Dante's Inferno.⁴ And he departed.

6 And it came to pass, after many days, that he assembled with those who cried out together, encouraging the strong men to battle.

7 And he was fain to be of a certain tribe, the tribe of Breckety Kex.

8 And they would have nought of him.

9 Then spake he unto those round about him: Let us cry out aloud; are we not better than these others?

10 And they said unto him, Cry thou. And he arose and called on the names of sundry strange gods, so that many mocked him, saying, Hail, fool!

11 Thus was ended the tale of Hansell, that it might be fulfilled as it was written, Freshmen will be heard, also seen.

CHAPTER II

1, The coming of Ber Tall; 2-5, He assembleth the legions;
5, Mar Ter; 6-8, Who beseecheth; 9, Getteth the rinky-dink; 10, Groucheth; 11, Ariseth; 13-15, Playeth in the game whereby almost cometh defcat.

1 And it came to pass that one Ber Tall arose among the people, saying, Come unto me, ye men of might, that we may hold battle and smite the unrighteous.

2 And have dominion over the ungodly tribes.¹ ^{1 R. V. Haverford.}

3 And those huge of limb came unto him, girded with armor, shouting and crying for joy.

4 And they did battle day by day at even, on the plain where were Naut-fore slain with the toes of the godly.²

² 12-0.

CHAPTER III

5 And one of brawn, albeit not of brain; even Mar Ter arose, crying, O best I am, great and valorous. Put thou me on the 'varsity.³

6 And Ber Tall took counsel, even with Brooke the wise, whose head is as the rising sun, and they spake unto Mar Ter, saying:

7 Thou art a warm babe, but thou canst not melt the frigidness;⁴

8 Thou art as much of a hot tomat as is John whose surname is Hayman:

9 Go thou unto the scrub.⁵

10 And he retired and was seated, nor would he battle any more, saying, I am too great for them.

11 And he sulked, praying to his gods, even to the gods of babes and sucklings.

12 And these gods, little gods but very mean, heard him and smote one Mat Hews, breaking him in twain; whereupon Mar Ter burnt offerings, rejoicing in his heart.

13 For he got on the 'varsity.

14 Poor 'varsity!

15 And it came to pass in the battle that the righteous came as near being done as is an ace unto a two-spot.

16 Lo! great is Mar Ter of the Swarthmoreans.

17 Thus was it brought to pass as it was written, Empty vessels make the most noise.

1, The Munx; 2, He gets hard up; 3-4, He extendeth himself; 5-6, Mar Shal, his words; 7, The feast; 8-9, The caters; 10, The wrath of the Munx; 11-12, The fulfilment of the prophecy.

1 Now there was in the land a tribe, even the Munx, a small tribe, but evil.

2. And Wil Bur¹ took counsel with himself, saying:

3 Behold, if I get me no aid I will die out, and Aurora² shall weep over my grave.

4 And he said unto certain others, Come unto me, and they came,

5 Save one, Mar Shal, a wise man:

6 Who spoke unto Wil Bur, saying, Depart thou unto Jehannum.³

7 And they of the Munx made a great feast in a new land, even in Meed Ya.

8 But e'er they arrived, certain godly ones, Stew-Wart,⁴ Fred the Mortmite, and De An, who fusseth.

9 And these were anhungered and athirst, and did eat and drink, and were filled with the good things of the Munx.

10 And the Munx came, and saw the screeds which had been left in payment, and were wroth exceeding.

11 And Wil Bur blasphemed, swearing by the soul of Saint Agnes.

12 For thus was fulfilled the saying:

13. Fools make feasts and wise men eat them. Solmy.

³ Lit., spoil them the 'Varsity.

⁴ Lit., the Supe.

⁵ R. V. Go 'way back and sit down.

² Obscure. Lit., seems to mean "a blonde person."

³ Prex's office.

⁴ "The awful righteous one."

Looking Backward

When we've left our Alma Mater,
And our college days are past,
And the world's hard knocks have made us rather sore

Then we think of all the jolly times
We let go sliding by,
And we wonder why we didn't think before.

When the world don't go to suit us,
And the splendid things we planned
Seem every day to dodge us more and more,
Then we know there was a time when all
Was like a dream of love,
And we wonder why we didn't know before.

And we've had to learn our lesson
And we find that life is rough,
And the blessings of this world require the cash,—
But those days of peace and plenty
Come up fresh before our minds,
And then—O then—we even long for hash!

The Swarthmore Owl

Now Kipling sings the "Empire State,"
Which scorns the ringing rail;
And Rawnsley, "the artillery," hymns
The Pennsylvania Mail;
Cy Warman tells of flying wheels
Where gorge-racked rivers howl;
But none of these my fancy please—
I sing the Swarthmore "Owl."

Not hers the beat of the Pullman trucks,
The roll of the great "compound";
Not hers the dash through the sleety night
Where the cañon echoes sound;
She carries no heroes of old romance,
On her no villains scowl;
But a godless crew, and jolly, too,
Are passengers on the Owl.

Wreck, if you will, the Empire State,
Abolish the F. F. V.;
Strike from the card the Limited,
And still a smile have we.
But, Fates, officials, and railroad men,
Would you make us cuss and howl?
Just take from the schedule our friend in need,
The dear old Swarthmore Owl.

Basket=ball

On a fair spring day the Freshman girls
Came chasing through the hall,
With cheery laugh and merry tread,
On their way to play at "ball."

On the broad gym, floor they met their fate,
It was a fearful fall,
When their pride came down to the zero point,
For they couldn't play the ball.

That evening the same team of girls,
But very different all,
Crept to their rooms with wretched tread
And didn't play at "bawl."

VOILA!

“617 TINCUP ALLEY, CHESTER, PA.

“I suffered greatly from Algebraconicalculus, sometimes causing me to lose my equilibrium. I tried many remedies and consulted famous specialists, but felt no relief from my trouble.

“Finally, a friend recommended Dr. S. Hamningcun's Silver Gumption Cure. I procured a sample bottle free, and the first dose had such a marked effect upon me, that I concluded to continue taking. After using one week, the swelling had greatly decreased, and I soon felt as if I would be reduced to a minimum.

“I can heartily recommend Dr. S. Hamningcun's Silver Gumption Cure to any one suffering from brain expansion.

“HERR JERBERT BENKS.”

This Degree

HE came chock full of ambition;
He would be something great, he knew,
And he'd make the whole world wonder
At the things he was going to do.

His overfond papa, elated,
Was impatiently waiting to see
His boy, overladen with honors,
Coming home with a Ph. D.

But alas for such lofty ambitions,
And that pride must so oft have a fall!
Dame Fortune is ever inconstant,
And the surest will fail after all.

Though he stuck to his father's instructions
And very soon won a degree,—
'Twas a blow to parental ambitions
When he came home a T. H. D.

In Psychology there was a teacher
Who likewise was a Quaker preacher.
Though he said, "Express briefly,"
He meant, "Tell completely,"
Hence low grades were a feature.

To a Photograph

A MAIDEN's face looks up at me
In sunshine, rain, or cloudy weather:
With dainty, artful, cunning glance, her faultless
charms somehow enhance, and, half in trance,
I gaze and gaze for hours together.

This fairy form has laughing eyes,
Which drown all sorrow in their glance:
How many memories cluster there! In every ringlet of thy hair, O maiden fair,
I find a sweet remembrance!

Freshman Days

IN those happy, bygone days
We were careless in our ways,
What cared we for a tardy or a cut?
We would take a short vacation
On the slightest provocation,
And return when our finances struck a rut.
Our aim was not the sheepskin
Nor the honors of debate,
But to lead a charmed existence
And leave the rest to fate.

A Tragedy of the Links

I'm never ower fond o' golf,
The game's too fou' wi' pothers;
But syne I canno' share the sport,
I still maun watch the others.

Out on the links, one bonnie day,
I gaed to watch a three-some;
An' could it was, as could could be,
Fou' could enough to freeze 'em.

There was a lassie on thae links,
Wha had cheeks like a cherry,
She weepit as her heart nicht brak:
I thocht to mak her merry;

So spiers at her, "Why greet sae sair?
Come, dry thine een, my lassie!"
She blinks at me, the witch, an' says,
"Ou, losh! I've broke my brassie."

At the Lansdowne dance
The folks did grin
When Sandy scratched her nose
On a D. U. pin.

Handsome Dan

WHEN cark and care have bound our work,
When drear defeat has come,
When all our work has gone for nought,
When happiness is dumb;
When gray and gloomy loom the skies,
When worked is every plan,
We drive the "grouches" for away
By filling meerschaum, briar, or clay,
With "Handsome Dan."

As upward curl the filmy rings,
Our cares and sorows flee;
We roam the bounds of time and space,
From toil's dull shackles free;
The blows of hostile fate are healed,
And stilled the sneers of man,
For every ill must have an end,
And we have still a faithful friend
In "Handsome Dan."

O pilgrim on this weary way,
Put up thy staff awhile:
Come, bow with us before her shrine
And know her healing smile;
Come, worship Lady Nicotine,
Forgetful for a space,
And soothe the scars that sear thy soul
By breaking Lethe from a bowl
Of "Handsome Dan."

Tales for Tots

No, my child, that is not an ath-lete. That is Mis-ter Sen-sen-der-fer with his la-crosse stick. He thinks he is play-ing the game, but he is not. What is he do-ing? O, mere-ly fur-nish-ing a-muse-ment to the squad.

Is this a man? No, it is George Worth. What is George Worth? It is a queer pro-duct from Coates-ville. Is it good to eat? I do not think it is. What does it do? It plays the pi-a-no and feeds the HAL-cy-on staff on can-dy, and walks like John-ny Hay-man.

THAT is a po-et. He puts in so much of his time writ-ing son-nets and odes that he will flunk in Ther-mo Dy-nam-ics. Yes, that is a hard word. You know more a-bout it than he does. See his new glass-es. He got sore eyes look-ing for his vers-es in the Ex-change Col-umns of the col-lege pa-pers.

THIS is a grave. Let us weep. Here is bur-ied Bil-ly Walk-er's con-sci-ence. It died so long a-go that he has for-got-ten he ev-er had one. Would you be-lieve that he ev-er had?

GIN a body meet a body
 Comin' thro' the hall,
 Gin a body see a body
 Can't a body call?
 Ilka lassie has her laddie
 E'en tho' seeking knowledge;
 Swarthmore girls are just like those
 In every other college.

 Gin a body meet a body
 Out on the long asphaltum,
 Gin a body greet a body
 Can't she stop and halt 'em?
 Sweeter far is conversation
 In the open air.
 Than on evenings in the parlor
 When Mrs. Bond's there.

A Death Paean

He was hurt on the lacrosse field; we bore him o'er the track,
 On four sticks, crossed as a litter, to the gym.:
 We laid him on the matting and silently drew back
 As his "wife" and dearest friend bent over him.
 Ere his spirit fled to better realms, his eyes unclosed
 again
 And a sentence of farewell we heard him mutter,
 "Good-by, old man, I'm going—where—we'll—never have to train,
 And where—they never will—run shy of butter."

Is it True

That

The Seniors are waiting for Marconi to invent wireless circuits and connecting-rodless engines?
 Alice Sullivan can walk like Dorothy Green?
 The Sophomores' President has not signed the Constitution?
 Charley Corson can't sleep?
 Miss Bronk doesn't know the names of the girls
 when they are dressed up?
 Nate talks a great deal in Athletics about "My department"?
 George Satterthwaite has a large appetite?
 Mary and Nancy don't agree on co-education?
 Elliott plays with his slide rule?
 Wm. Roberts would be taller if his feet were shorter?
 George Worth walks like Johnny Hayman?
 Bayne Marshall has no regular table?
 The Kilgores want a chaperon?
 Mrs. Bond is the Student Government?
 Edson takes the Delineator?
 Anna Nichols combs her hair?
 Helen doesn't like to be president of Student Government?

Under the Stars

THE campus gleams beneath the rising moon,
And soft, the tinkling of the mandolins
Breaks night's sweet silence with an old-time tune.
Then from the broad-armed cherry tree begins
A mimic snow, white as an angel's wing,
Lighter than laughter, and as pure as love,
While over all the stars swing bright above
A scene as fair as Arcady in spring.

SPRING's sunshine shed on field and shore,
The landscape dimmed by swaying haze,—
Bring to my roving thoughts once more
Sweet dreams of half-remembered days.
Those perfect days, so far away,
Gilded by time, return to me,
As at thy dreamy shrine I pray,
O yellow-haired Mnemosyne.

O, my beloved, pour a cup of tea
Or coffee black, and give the same to me.
Tell me not which it is, but let me try
By taste to tell which of the twain it be.

I hear the soft swell of the music
A perfume of flowers fills the air
There's the gleam of the dawn 'neath her lashes
And sunshine lies hid in her hair.

O Cupid, I make supplication!
Pray lend me the touch of your art
For I wish to make war on my lady
And storm that high fortress, her heart!

Alas 'tis not easily taken
And long have I stormed it in vain
And many and strong are the gallants
Who have failed any victory to gain.

She smiles and I know she is happy
But quite as well pleased would she be
If her partner were some other fellow
And I ten leagues 'neath the sea.

So Cupid, make ready your arrow
And if I can aim it aright
We two will go dancing forever
Through life as we're dancing tonight.

Roundelay

FULL-PETALED rose of joy,
Far have I sought thee through this darkling world,—
From the dead plains of Troy
E'en to the iris-purple Western sea, where hurled
Against the sunset, lift the Happy Isles.

Most perilous rose of joy,
Far have I sought thee, and still seek in vain;
Still the dread Sisters toy
With our frail threads, now close, now parted once
again,
Ne'er meeting, till we know the Happy Isles.

Beloved rose of joy,
Though skies frown dark, though bitter loom defeat,
No blow can e'er destroy
This truth, that somewhere in the mystic future, sweet,
Together we will roam the Happy Isles.

I had a sudden shock to-day,
It almost took my breath away,
I saw a sight which no one here
Has seen in many days—
Three modest Freshmen hurrying,
And scurrying, and worrying,
To learn the life of Wordsworth
For English—under Hayes.

A Tale, Sad But True

"If ye have tears, prepare to shed them now,"
And pause and listen while I tell you how
A little Freshman, one of tender age,
Was fast imprisoned in an iron cage
By one whose talents have acquired some fame
For doing wicked stunts in Virtue's name.
'Twas on a Sabbath morn, this little maid,
Of bugaboos and goblins half afraid,
Yet longing still to breathe the upper air
And gaze around upon the landscape fair,
With trouble sore at last obtained the keys
And climbed the dome to look—perchance to freeze!
The friends she asked were ravished with delight
To "have a look" from such a lofty height,
But wind and cold soon forced them to repent
And some engagement quickly to invent,
As, one by one, they hurried down the stair
Until there were three remaining there.
Then one departed with an end in view
And closed the door, as he was wont to do,
Forgot, alas! the two upon the dome,
And slipped the bolt and left them there alone.
But this did not affect the happy two,
For hours elapsed before they ever knew!
When gayly rang aloud the meeting bell,
With fear of being late, they—well—

They didn't go; and was it passing strange
That with such suddenness their minds should change,—

That all the meeting troup went marching by
And left those two alone, perched up on high,
And very queer that while the wind did blow
A chilling blast, they didn't seem to know?
Meanwhile this solemn man of absent mind
Upon the sermon deep intent we find,
Except when now and then he seemed to be
O'ercome with laughter, quite unmeet to see.
Why was it, that although the President spoke,
'Twas he alone who seemed to see a joke?
At last, when meeting had declared a truce
And all its victims were again let loose,
They searched for those who had been left alone,
But all too late—the spark of life had flown!

* * * * *

And now the stranger sees a pleasing sight
Who turns his eyes upon that lofty height,
For two imposing statues come to view,
Teaching a lesson that is sad but true;
They seem to say, "O mortals, pray beware
Lest ye, too, get an overdose of air:
Scorn not on low and humble ground to tread,
For we aspired, and that is why we're dead!"

Jokes

In History class:

Dr. Hull—"Miss Elmore, what has clung to thy memory in these forty years?"

Edgar Green (in Composition class)—"My essay isn't finished, professor."

Prof. Hayes—"Is it begun?"

Edgar—"No."

Evelyn Hadley—"O Albert, skating is fine, and I am learning to roll."

Albert Williams—"Yes, I see snow on your back."

English class.

Prof. Hayes—"Carpenter, in what meter is this poem?"

Carpenter—"Pessimistic."

Heard during mid-year exams.:

"Good day for the race."

"What race?"

"Pony race."

Miss Bronk—"N'avez-vous pas étudié cette leçon?"

Student—"No."

Miss Bronk—"Quelle dommage."

After meeting:

Mrs. Bond—"Lucile, I enjoyed thy sentiment to-day."

Lucile—"Thanks; I a-a-am glad you did. So many good sentiments can be found in the 'Sam of Life.'"

First Freshman—"Did you say that Fred Griest is stingy?"

Second Freshman—"Well, I have found him rather. Close sometimes."

In Dr. Kleene's class:

Dr. Kleene—"Can any member of the class give an example of a direct tax levied upon the consumer?"

Miss Kilgore—"Dog-tax."

Freshman—"What is meant by student government?"

Sophomore—"A government of Mrs. Bond, by Mrs. Bond for the students."

Heard in Pedagogy:

President—"What is the definition of a chair, Miss Tabor?"

Miss Tabor—"An article of furniture for one person with four legs and a back."

Dr. Battin—"Translate into German, 'I can have been' to 'have had come,' 'if I had not been allowed to permit him to have done it.'"

Edith Coale—"How do you say that in English?"

Student—"But, professor, I found it that way in the dictionary."

Prof. Price—"Oh, well, you know the devil can quote Scripture for his purpose."

Dr. Hull—"Miss Sutton, has thee anybody?"

Miss Sutton—"No."

Dr. Hull—"Well, I shall put Arnold after thy name."

Margaret Paterson—"When a man is decapitated, what part of him is cut off?"

Fragments

(Orations on Lincoln)

WHILE from the lips of Sophomores, truths eagerly we're drinkin'

Of the virtues, manly character, and honesty of Lincoln,

A listener might remark with ease, although the fact
not nice is,

You can find the words and sentiments "in toto" in
"The Crisis."

DEAN Eliza greets the snow

With poem, reading, and low-voiced praise,
That it may teach us of truth and right
And better our days.

Dean, the Freshman, greets the snow

With whoop and "holler" of blithe good will,
That it may give him a chance to coast
And slide down hill.

Chapter of D. K. E.

Good-by

THE night wind moans through the swaying boughs,
The lanterns flicker, and flash, and die ;
Hushed are the whispers of parting vows,—
The smile that is half a sigh.
Dark and silent are walk and hall,
Dark as the gray dome over all,
And silent as the sky.
And here is the end of another span ;
Our work and our play are done, old man,—
Good-by !

There's a man in this old College
So marvelously tall,
That when you chance to meet him,
On the walk or in the hall,
And exchange a friendly greeting—
For he's nothing of a snob—
You're apt to feel like shouting,
"How's the weather up there, Bob?"

You've heard o' buyin' at a booth,
An' sure, mum, I have found
That when there is a Booth in sight
There's a b'y somewheres around.

OF PHILADELPHIA

THE best in life insurance is likely to be the cheapest. The same fidelity, skill, and care which are necessary to guarantee the future
security of a company, result in the lowest cost.
A good test, therefore, is to determine whether the organization and the surroundings of the company exclude all doubt as to future security.*

Evidence of the skillful and faithful management of the Provident is found in its exceedingly low expense rate, and the remarkably favorable rate of mortality. For the whole period of its existence its death rate has been lower than that of any other American company.
